A Message From Our President

Beannachdan,,

As the council looks towards fresh new ways to bring Scottish culture to the community, our Marketing Director Samantha Hurst and I along with Tom Johnson from Queen City Pipe Band found ourselves at World Compass Academy in Castle Rock.

The school reached out to the Society and enquired if we would be able to attend their Cultural Awareness Day. It was quite a time! Samantha created a slide show and we took turns discussing, Scottish history, Highland Games, Scottish contributions to society and the world, and of course music! Tom was in his element explaining how the bagpipes function and sound as well and how he was introduced to the instrument. The students really enjoyed the interaction, after all, who doesn't like the beautiful atmosphere of the drones at 9:00 in the morning?

There was time for some question and answer discussions between all three assemblies and what I enjoyed the most, was discussing what our Society has to offer. The staff was extremely generous and thankful for our attendance.

It's absolutely critical that as a Society we continue to invest in the youth and the younger generations, steeping them in the tradition and cultivate interest and a sense of belonging. After all, they are our future! We look forward to more opportunities to share our stories, experiences, and further the Scottish community in Colorado!

Cheers

Jonathan D. Wilson

Colorado Tartan Day Festival

The Boulder County Fairgrounds played host to another successful Colorado Tartan Day Festival on April 12th and 13th, continuing its annual tradition of celebrating Scottish heritage on the second weekend of April. Under picture-perfect skies, attendees enjoyed a vibrant gathering that brought together numerous Scottish Clans, a diverse array of vendors offering traditional goods, and engaging historical reenactors. The lively atmosphere and pleasant weather ensured a memorable experience for all who came to celebrate the spirit of Scotland in Colorado.

The image is a promotional graphic for the Colorado Highland Games. It features a stylized logo with a 'C' and 'H' intertwined. The text 'COLORADO HIGHLAND GAMES' is in large, bold, white letters. Below it, 'BY THE ST. ANDREW SOCIETY OF COLORADO' is written in a smaller font. The dates 'SEPT 20 & 21, 2025' and the location 'SEDALIA, CO' are prominently displayed. The website 'SCOTTISHGAMES.ORG' is at the bottom. To the right, there are four small, square images showing a woman in kilts dancing, a man in a kilt playing bagpipes, a classic car, and a person in a kilt holding a long staff.
